CONSTANT RED 'NO' REBUFFS UN

College Chief Disturbed By N. Y. Judge

Terms Suspended In Cage Fix Case

PEORIA, Ill., Dec. 8.—David Blair Owen, blamed by a New York judge of morally debasing three basketball players in his position as president of Bradley university, has been joined by school officials and townspeople in labeling the blast "unfair."

Owen, who rose from the job of handling sports publicity to the $14,000 a year president of Bradley, was assailed Friday by Judge Saul S. Streit who aimed his broadside after giving suspended sentences to three former Bradley basketball players on charges of conspiracy to fix games.

The three are Gene Melchiorre, George Chianakis and William Mann.

Streit accused Owen of giving university sanction to "moral debasement" of the three former players, who had pleaded guilty to the charge.

Streit denounced Owen for "his equisecence" in the three players' "subsidization, and by his extensive traveling with the members of the team while their studies were ignored he gave official university sanction to their moral debasement."

STREIT HIT at what he charged were snap courses taken by the players, such as social and square dancing, and money paid to them by the Braves Booster Club.

Streit's blast brought these reactions:

Owen: "Naturally, I am disturbed, and I think Judge Streit's remarks are unfair. Everything I have done has been strictly honest and sincere and for the best interest of the school, the players and the game of basketball."

"Judge Streit is to be highly commended for his attempt to improve the tone of intercollegiate basketball. We are just as eager as anyone to clean up these abuses, but I think the judge's inference about Bradley, and particularly me, are unfair."

Harry Mitchell, president of the booster club: "The Braves booster organization actually gave less in financial aid to the athletes going to school than any other school in the Missouri Valley Conference. 'The amounts were so trivial it would be ridiculous even for me to mention them. The main thing we gave athletes was scholarships. We helped kids get parttime jobs.'"

HAROLD PHILLIPS, president of Bradley alumni: "The condemnation of Owen is grossly unfair. Before Owen was elevated to the presidency, Bradley had few alumni groups anywhere. Bradley's National Alumni Association considers it a valuable asset all over the country to have the president of the university speak to them."

School officials said that courses such as square dancing, elementary badminton and others were part of the physical education program. All students are required to take at least two years of physical education.

Girl, 7, Hurt In Fall From Moving Auto

A seven-year-old girl was given emergency treatment in Berger hospital and later transferred into a Columbus hospital Saturday after she fell from a moving auto on Route 23.

She is Gloria Blake, one of four children of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Blake of Sawyewood.

Blake said the mishap happened at about 10 a. m. Saturday as he and his family travelled south on Route 23 toward Circleville. He said his four children had been playing in the rear of the car at the time.

The youngster suffered lacerations of her head and body in the mishap. She was given emergency treatment in Berger hospital and later transferred into Children's hospital, Columbus, for observation. Her condition was reported good.

IN A MOOD of rare joviality, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky (facing camera) talks to reporters in Paris following a Big Four session at which he indicated Russia still insisted on banning of the atom bomb before controls for force compliance are set up.

Grocers Seeking Higher Prices

Food Leaders Tell OPS Profit Margin Now Is Far Too Narrow

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The nation's grocers want permission to charge higher prices—basing their plea primarily on increased costs.

Price stabilization officials said they would conduct a quick survey of conditions in the nation's 560,000 food stores to see if "emergency" relief from present grocery store price ceilings is needed.

But officials indicated overall grocery price adjustments would not come for some time.

Grocers took their plea for a bigger margin of profit to the Office of Price Stabilization through the Retail Food Distributors Industry Advisory Committee. The committee represents both independent and chain grocers.

Price control officials said the requested increase might add one-half to one per cent to the country's present food bill.

The advisory committee told OPS that grocers need to enlarge their present overall profit margin by two percentage points.

Big 4 Finds No Accord

A-Bomb Prohibition Still Being Debated

PARIS, Dec. 8.—The Western Powers have been reported authoritatively to have informed UN Assembly President Luis Padilla Nervo they have not agreed to the immediate prohibition of the atomic bomb.

The Big Four delegations met for about two and one-half hours Saturday after Western power advisers and delegates sat up most of the night preparing their replies to a bombshell memorandum tossed before the Big Four by Padilla, who is presiding at the Big Four sessions.

The Big Four will meet again Monday for what might be the final session of their closed-door talks. They are sitting as a subcommittee of the assembly's political committee and have orders to report back Monday.

Informed sources indicated that the United States, Britain and France were making it clear in no uncertain terms that they still stand for prohibition of atomic weapons only after a genuine and effective system of international control has been established and is working satisfactorily.

They said this is far different from Russian demands for immediate prohibition of the atomic weapons with controls to be talked about later.

Spring Here? Pansies Bloom

Spring is bustin' out right in the dead of winter here in Circleville according to reports from persons in the vicinity.

Mrs. Harry Betz of Reber avenue has pansies blooming in her garden which, normally, shouldn't show their faces until the month of May.

Robert Brehmer reports that pussywillows trees are bursting their buds and that there is danger of early fruit trees coming into bud if the unusually warm weather persists.

But the ambitious flowers and trees are in for a shock—the weatherman is sending a cold wave into Ohio next week which should put an end to the Spring preview.

REQUESTED increase in across-the-counter grocery profits came atop three developments this week bearing on food prices:

1. OPS Wednesday gave thousands of manufacturers, processors, refiners and others—including businesses preparing meat, milk, butter and other foods for the retail market—permission to apply for higher ceiling prices.

This was done on the basis of the Capehart amendment to the price controls law. The amendment, named for one of its authors, Senator Capehart (R-Ind.), requires the government to let manufacturers and processors add virtually all business cost increases from the outbreak of fighting in Korea through last July 26 to their price ceilings.

A firm applying for increases on some of its lines must also subtract any cost decreases affecting its other goods.

2. On Thursday, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that retail food prices reached a new high on Nov. 15. The bureau said survey pushed its index up to 231.2, compared to 1935-1939 average of 100. That is about 14 per cent above pre-Korea prices.

3. The bureau also said that the general wholesale price level fell 4.10 of one per cent during the week ended Dec. 4.

THE DECLINE resulted from lower prices for many farm commodities—raw wool, steers, hogs, eggs, oranges and potatoes.

The retail food distributors committee said grocers are having two kinds of difficulties in making a profit.

On some items, it said, price ceilings are too low to allow enough profit in view of increased operating costs.

In other cases, it said, grocers are selling some items at less than ceiling prices because of market conditions.

Federal Aides Involved In Court Squabble

CLEVELAND, Dec. 8.—A court quarrel is in progress here over the two children of the wife of William S. Twenhofel, chief of the United States Geological Survey in Alaska.

Mrs. Elizabeth Twenhofel, a Cleveland, is being sued by her former husband, Francis A. Stejer, a government geologist in Washington. Twenhofel used to be Stejer's boss in Alaska.

Stejer wants the court to do two things:

(1) Punish Mrs. Twenhofel for violating a court order forbidding her to take her two children to Juneau, Alaska, for a visit to her new husband, last Summer. Contempt of court carries a maximum 10-day jail sentence and $500 fine.

(2) Award him $105,000 in an alienation of affections suit against Twenhofel and his ex-wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Robinson of Cleveland, who he said, encouraged his wife to marry Twenhofel.

For her part, Mrs. Twenhofel is asking the court to set aside the present court order and allow her to take her children, Charles, 7, and Sharon, 4, to Juneau to live with her husband.

CIO Seeking $1 Of Ohio Members For Politics

CLEVELAND, Dec. 8.—The Ohio CIO Council has launched a drive to collect voluntary contributions of one dollar each from the more than one-half million CIO members in this state to finance its education and political programs.

A resolution adopted by unanimous vote of the 1,000 delegates at the council's annual convention also directed the Ohio CIO Political Action Committee to:

1. Support progressive forces in the two major political parties and base its judgment of candidates and parties upon their records and platforms.

2. Cooperate as readily as possible with political agencies of other labor organizations and all others dedicated "to the same ideals of public service as the CIO."

3. Work with each local union to register their members and friends to vote in the elections.

4. Continue to publicize records of all candidates for public office.

The president of the CIO Communications Workers told the delegates that the man labor wants for the next President "of course is Harry S. Truman."

Joseph A. Beire listed Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Gov. Earl Warren of California and Harold E. Stassen and said:

"None of them has anything that Labor wants."

Third Air Force Plane Crashes; 30 Feared Dead

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The crash of a U. S. Air Force Flying Boxcar in Japan's Island Sea Saturday brought to 30 the possible death toll in three widely separate smashups of American military aircraft.

In Tokyo, the Air Force said one injured crewman had been picked up, three bodies had been recovered and a fifth airman is missing. The plane was on a flight between bases in Japan.

Sixteen men are missing on a B-29 Superfort which crashed in the Atlantic Ocean on a flight between the Azores and Bermuda. Another ten are lost on a C-47 cargo plane which hit a peak in Southern France. Both these crashes occurred Thursday.

Air searchers near Cuges-les-Pins, France, found the wreckage of the C-47, but saw no sign of life. The plane was enroute from Tripoli, Libya, to Marseille.

Wreckage of the B-29 and one body were reported found by searchers who have been hampered by rain and moderately high seas.

The C-47 was the third U. S. Air Force plane lost in Europe in less than four weeks. One C-47 was forced down Nov. 19 while over Red Hungary, and its crew of four was taken into custody.

A Flying Boxcar crashed in Southern France Nov. 13, killing all 36 servicemen aboard.

MINT IS WORKING OVERTIME

Treasury Says Supply Of Coins Gets Better

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The Treasury is beginning to see its way out of an acute shortage of coins.

For months now, many stores and banks have been hard put for enough pennies and other coins to keep up with their transactions.

They've had to resort to hasty borrowing from one another occasionally, and Federal Reserve banks have rationed some coins among member banks in their district.

Leland Howard, assistant director of the Mint, said Saturday the coin supply is still "nip and tuck," but that, even with Christmas shopping underway, there will be enough coins to meet demands.

HE SAID coin rationing by Federal Reserve banks is expected to end next month at the latest. The usual policy is to permit unlimited exchange of dollar bills for coins.

Here is how the situation developed and what the Mint is doing about it:

It costs money to make money—25 cents for a pound of copper to make 145 pennies.

The Mint asked Congress for an appropriation big enough to pay for producing 1.7 billion coins in the year which began July 1—an output that could have taken about 7,000 tons of metal.

But Congress allowed the Mint funds for production of only 1.3 billion coins.

On top of that, nickel and copper are scarce defense materials. For one month, September, the Mint couldn't get any copper at all to make pennies.

At the same time, the demand for coins has been increasing sharply. More states and cities are putting on sales taxes, and that takes on more pennies. More and more buying of all sorts of things is being done through coin-operated vending machines.

BECAUSE OF its shortage of funds and materials, and the growing demand, the Mint couldn't turn out coins as fast as they were needed in the business marts.

The Mint stepped up production as fast as its budget would permit, Howard said. The Denver Mint went on two shifts, six days a week, and the Philadelphia Mint stepped up from the usual 40 hours of production to a 50-hour week.

By January, the supply should be more than ample.

Muskrats Steal Post Holes, So Reports Hoosier

BURLINGTON, Wis., Dec. 8.—A Hoosier named Hosier, who claims muskrats carried off his post holes to use for living quarters, is one of the entries in this year's Burlington Liars' Club contest.

Harry Hosier of Lincoln, Ind., hopes to win with this story:

"I have the worst luck. Yesterday the hired man and I worked all day digging post holes. This morning I went out to set the posts. No holes. Got to looking around and found them. Muskrats had carried them to the creek, dove down and shoved them back up under the bank for dens."

Mailbags full of other stories just as full of holes as this one are converging on this town as judges strive to meet the year-end deadline for choosing the world champion liar.

Both Sides See Tempers Grow Frayed

Five Communist Demands Studied

MUNSAN, Dec. 8.—United Nations negotiators Saturday made another unsuccessful effort to break the long deadlock over policing a truce in Korea.

The Reds rebuffed all UN overtures and again said "No" to every key UN proposal for supervising an armistice.

After five hours of debate in which tempers on both sides of the conference table became frayed, the two-man subcommittees appeared no nearer an agreement which would break the 12-day deadlock.

NONETHELESS, some observers saw hope of a compromise solution soon. They believe the negotiations have reached the hard bargaining stage which frequently comes just before an agreement is hammered out.

The negotiators go back to Panmunjom for another session at 11 a. m. Sunday (9 p. m. EST Saturday).

In a lengthy harrangue, North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Song Chae flatly rejected five points the Allies insist must be included in any truce supervision agreement.

Lee said the Communists would:

1. Insist on the right to rebuild damaged airfields and construct new bases in North Korea.
2. Refuse to concede the UN demand for rotation of troops and replacement of equipment during an armistice.

3. DEMAND that the Allies evacuate islands off the coast of North Korea and withdraw all naval forces from coastal waters.
4. Insist on rear area inspection only at mutually agreed ports of entry and refuse UN demands for unlimited aerial reconnaissance and the use of communications lines by observer teams.

5. Reject the UN proposal for a single armistice commission to supervise the truce and insist on a joint UN-Communist commission with a separate organization of neutral nations to provide observer teams.

Grand Jury Seen Probing Canton Election Scandal

CANTON, Dec. 8.—With Rest Home Owner Paul D. Lyon convicted of forgery, Common Pleas Judge George N. Graham says he may ask a grand jury to look further into a Stark county election scandal.

Lyon was convicted Friday on 12 counts of forging names of aged patients in his home to applications for absentee ballots last Spring.

The penalty for such a conviction is one to 20 years in the penitentiary, but sentence has been deferred, pending motion for a new trial. Lyon is free on $5,000 bond, posted by his wife, Belle.

Lyon, a ruddy, stocky man in his 50s, has been active in Democratic politics here for two years. He ran, unsuccessfully, for the nomination of mayor in 1933 and 1937.

In connection with the same case—the claimed irregularities concerned the Democratic primary—Leo Schirack, former board of elections clerk, will be tried Dec. 17 on a misconduct charge. Then next month, he will be tried for perjury.

Schirack was fired from his job as head of the local Democratic organization.

Volcano Rumbles For Fifth Day

MANILA, Dec. 8.—Lava spewed from four holes near the top of Mount Hibokhibok Saturday as the volcano continued its eruptions into the fifth day.

Flashes were marked by four glowing red spots that could be seen clearly through the smoke and steam swirling around the peak on Camiguin Island in the Southern Philippines.

Philippines News Service said also it had received an unconfirmed report that part of the village of Panasan, west of Mabajao, had sunk into the sea.

Volcano experts in Manila discounted the report. They said such a sinking of the earth near an erupting volcano would have shown on seismographs here.

The flight of Camiguin residents to nearby Mindanao and other islands is continuing.

THE HARD-HIT northern part of the 13-mile long island virtually was deserted. Only a few persons ventured up the east coast for a look at the burned out area which now lies under a layer of ashes 10 feet deep in places.

Delayed reports from the island said 266 bodies had been recovered so far. One official said more than 1,000 are buried under the ashes and will never be found.

Both Sides See Tempers Grow Frayed

Five Communist Demands Studied

MUNSAN, Dec. 8.—United Nations negotiators Saturday made another unsuccessful effort to break the long deadlock over policing a truce in Korea.

The Reds rebuffed all UN overtures and again said "No" to every key UN proposal for supervising an armistice.

After five hours of debate in which tempers on both sides of the conference table became frayed, the two-man subcommittees appeared no nearer an agreement which would break the 12-day deadlock.

NONETHELESS, some observers saw hope of a compromise solution soon. They believe the negotiations have reached the hard bargaining stage which frequently comes just before an agreement is hammered out.

The negotiators go back to Panmunjom for another session at 11 a. m. Sunday (9 p. m. EST Saturday).

In a lengthy harrangue, North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Song Chon flatly rejected five points the Allies insist must be included in any truce supervision agreement.

Lee said the Communists would:

1. Insist on the right to rebuild damaged airfields and construct new bases in North Korea.
2. Refuse to concede the UN demand for rotation of troops and replacement of equipment during an armistice.

3. DEMAND that the Allies evacuate islands off the coast of North Korea and withdraw all naval forces from coastal waters.
4. Insist on rear area inspection only at mutually agreed ports of entry and refuse UN demands for unlimited aerial reconnaissance and the use of communications lines by observer teams.
5. Reject the UN proposal for a single armistice commission to supervise the truce and insist on a joint UN-Communist commission with a separate organization of neutral nations to provide observer teams.

CANTON, Dec. 8.—With Rest Home Owner Paul D. Lyon convicted of forgery, Common Pleas Judge George N. Graham says he may ask a grand jury to look further into a Stark county election scandal.

Lyon was convicted Friday on 12 counts of forging names of aged patients in his home to applications for absentee ballots last Spring.

The penalty for such a conviction is one to 20 years in the penitentiary, but sentence has been deferred, pending motion for a new trial. Lyon is free on $5,000 bond, posted by his wife, Belle.

Lyon, a ruddy, stocky man in his 50s, has been active in Democratic politics here for two years. He ran, unsuccessfully, for the nomination of mayor in 1933 and 1937.

In connection with the same case—the claimed irregularities concerned the Democratic primary—Leo Schirack, former board of elections clerk, will be tried Dec. 17 on a misconduct charge. Then next month, he will be tried for perjury.

Schirack was fired from his job as head of the local Democratic organization.

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

When our children were growing up I really tried to follow the advice I gave other parents. But you know very well that I often failed to measure up; also that as I became aware of my own failures, I suffered some remorse.

There were a few times, indeed, when I felt I should never make another speech to parents and never write another line of advice to them. But then again, on taking stock of some of my successes at self-discipline and self-improvement, I kept plodding on.

One evening, on returning from teaching a class of parents at a university, I felt so overwhelmed at the gap between what I preached and what I practiced as a parent, that I sat down and wrote a prayer for myself. Part of it are these words: "Reduce, I pray, the meanness in me; and when I am out of sorts help me, Oh Lord, to hold my tongue. . . . With all thy gifts, Oh, Great Jehovah, give me calm and poise and self-control." (A copy of this prayer may be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this paper.)

There are many good parents, exceptionally good ones, who are so blinded by their few discouragements they have as parents, that they rarely see the many times more good things that they do, and overlook the preponderance of their successes. I wish I knew how to help them see how good they are and to celebrate their own successes.

ONE MOTHER has written me to tell me she feels sure her efforts at self-improvement are bearing fruit and that my own feeble efforts have contributed a bit, at least, to her successes. I feel that see and I really trying together (though I have never met her) to climb upward. She writes:

"If we parents all had the perseverance and self-discipline in our natures necessary to follow your advice, what wonderfully adjusted children we all would have! However, with your assistance, many of us who might not be proper parents are learning to cultivate those qualities, and give our children at least some of the background they require."

"I want to thank you for the help I have obtained from your column in gradually quieting the inner disturbances (which no doubt have psychological origin) I had permitted to dominate our family life. I am sorry my own mother did not have your teachings to give to me earlier. But some day, if I can make myself over a few more times, I may become the kind of parent I should be."

"What success we have had in teaching our 11-year-old daughter to be kind to others, to cooperate with her teachers, to try to understand, as you said in a recent column, that she may have to deal later on with persons who vex her. I believe we owe in many ways to the things we learned from reading your articles."

I wrote this mother to congratulate her on her achievements, reminding her that all of us, like her, need to keep striving upward, and not let ourselves become too much discouraged over our own weaknesses and failures, but to build, with God's help, on our own strengths and celebrate our own successes and the successes of our mates and our children. Now I've got to work harder to be a better grandparent!

TOLEDOAN Helps Lad To Get His Christmas Wish

TOLEDO, Dec. 8.—(P)—Little Vernie Smith of Woodward, Okla., is going to get the gift he wants most for Christmas.

Vernie is going to have his Christmas Dec. 15 because he will lose his remaining eye next Wednesday.

After his plight became known presents poured in, but not the one he really yearned for—a toy jeep that will wind up and run.

Then a Toledo newspaper heard of the request. It contacted the Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., makers of the jeep. Marden Bishop, a company official, arranged to send the toy Vernie, who is two years and nine months old, wanted most.

It doesn't wind up and run, but it has other features which the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Smith, believe will make this Christmas the best he ever will see.

Vernie's jeep has a cab and trailer. And as he lifts the lid of the cab it will play a tune, "The Third Man." Mrs. Smith told Bishop she knew Vernie would be awfully thrilled to get it.

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

Boys, do you know how to exchange dances when you take your dream date to a formal dance?

Many girls write to this column saying "although we like our date, it's fun to exchange dances with other couples. One reason we don't do it more is because our dates don't know how to go about it, especially if introductions are involved. . . ."

There's nothing to it, boys, except an arrangement or two in advance.

When you see your friend, Bill, for instance, ask him if he's going to the "formal" and how about exchanging a dance. If you exchange several dances, perhaps you'll make a note of the number or just leave it indefinite to be "fixed up" at the dance.

When you see Bill and Jane at the dance, stroll over to them and ask if they'd like to make it the dance. When the music begins, simply exchange partners. At the end of the dance, rejoin your dates. That's all!

If introductions are necessary, it's up to the boy to make them. First, introduce the two girls (ladies first), saying, "Mary, this is Jane Smith. Jane, this is Mary Brown." Then introduce the other boy to your date: "Mary . . . Bill Black."

It's like the first plunge when you're swimming. . . . easy after you once get started. So why not start now?

Man Smoked Out Of Home After Wife Is Shot

GEORGETOWN, Dec. 8.—(P)—Mrs. Edna Purdy Daugherty, 50, was shot to death in her daughter's home here Friday night. Her estranged husband, Waldo Daugherty, 69, was wounded by police a short time later and taken into custody.

Acting Police Chief Arnold Watson said he shot Daugherty in the legs when the man refused to drop a shotgun he was carrying. Watson and Sheriff Dwight Harmon had used tear gas to force Daugherty out of his home.

Watson said the Daughertys had been separated for several weeks. After the shooting of Mrs. Daugherty, Watson said he went to Daugherty's home and found the man sitting in the house holding his shotgun. He said Daugherty pointed the gun at him and Watson went for reinforcements.

When he and Harmon fired a tear gas shell into the house, Daugherty fled out a rear door. He was still carrying the gun, Watson said and the officer opened fire when Daugherty refused to stop.

No formal accusation has yet been filed.

Then a Toledo newspaper heard of the request. It contacted the Willis-Overland Motors, Inc., makers of the jeep. Marden Bishop, a company official, arranged to send the toy Vernie, who is two years and nine months old, wanted most.

It doesn't wind up and run, but it has other features which the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Smith, believe will make this Christmas the best he ever will see.

Vernie's jeep has a cab and trailer. And as he lifts the lid of the cab it will play a tune, "The Third Man." Mrs. Smith told Bishop she knew Vernie would be awfully thrilled to get it.

Gun-Slingin, Cafe Pair Just 'Cool'

CLEVELAND, Dec. 8.—(P)—Stowers Cafe on Central Avenue has no place for crooks.

In 1933, Proprietor Joe Stowers, 59, chased three robbers with his revolver. In 1943 he shot and killed a holdup man.

Last Sept. 14, his wife, Loretta, 43, fired four shots at two bandits. Friday she sent 16 shots from two automatics after two other hoodlums.

Not a cent ever has been stolen from the cafe.

Says Mrs. Stowers: "We're very cool-headed."

Court's Decision Is Questioned

YOUNGSTOWN, Dec. 8.—(P)—City Law Director Herschel Hunt plans to ask the fifth district appellate court at Toledo for clarification on its recent decision which upheld a common pleaser ruling that Youngstown's one per cent tax on corporations is illegal.

He said he will ask the court to determine whether a three - mill across-the-board tax in the original ordinance still is effective, since only the amended section pertaining to corporations was ruled invalid.

The meeting is sponsored by the Fairfield County Bar association in cooperation with the Ohio State Bar Association committee on Ohio Practicing Law Institutes.

Methods of decreasing the amount of taxes collected by the Federal Government from a deceased persons estate under the present Federal estate tax laws will be studied.

Harrison Twp. Fire Truck To Get 2-Way Radio

A two-way radio circuit is to be installed in the new Harrison Township fire truck in Ashville Sunday.

The new Harrison truck, a 500-gallon Seagraves pumper, was delivered in Ashville earlier this week and tested by the 16 members of the Ashville Volunteer Fire Department.

The new pumper is to be equipped with a two-way radio to establish contact with the Pickaway County Sheriff's office and other nearby fire companies while on calls. The new radio is to be set to the sheriff's broadcasting band.

In addition to its new truck and radio, the fire department is expected to be furnished with new helmets and new raincoats by the township trustees.

THE HARRISON FD has entered into a mutual aid pact with other radio-equipped fire companies to give and receive assistance in case of larger fires.

Members of the Ashville VFD are: Frank Tedrow, chief; Joe Reis, assistant chief; P. J. Bozeman, Eugene Borror, Dana Borror, Edward Cummins, Thomas Rife, Roland Featheringham, Robert Burtnor, Dale Schiff, Mickie Rufford, Tod Hollenback, Slim Gillian, Bill Miller, Steve Cook and Connie Rose.

The unit can be summoned by calling the telephone operator in Ashville, who gives the fire signal.

CHINA AIR FORCE
Said 'Challenge'

CHICAGO, Dec. 8.—(P)—The U. S. Air Force still holds air superiority in Korea, says Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, but:

"The so-called Chinese air force, equipped with swarms of Mig-15s constitutes a formidable challenge," Vandenberg says.

The Mig-15 has appeared in great enough numbers in Korea "to convince even the most skeptical that Soviet Russia has solved many of the problems connected with the production of jet aircraft," he added.

Atkinson, 57, received cuts and bruises, and his wife, 64, suffered shock and leg injuries.

The loss of the house was estimated at $6,000. Firemen were investigating to learn whether a gas leak caused the explosion.

Sheriff's officers said the youth's auto was on the wrong side of the highway and the truck driver swerved to avoid hitting it head-on, struck it obliquely and crashed into a ditch.

31 New Members To Be Confirmed By Lutherans

A special confirmation service will be held Sunday in Trinity Lutheran church.

It is an annual practice that on the second Sunday in Advent the members of the Fall adult instruction class be received as members. It is also customary to receive others by letter of transfer at this service.

This Sunday, there will be a total of 31 new members taken into the church, either through confirmation or letter of transfer.

Sermon theme for the service is, "A Model Church Member," based on a text from I Peter.

The Rev. George Troutman says: "The requisites of a good church member, as described by Peter, are still the basis for faithfulness."

Senior Choir will lead the congregation in singing hymns, "Holy, Holy, Holy," "Let Me Be Thine Forever," "O Take My Hand, Dear Father" and "I Know Whom I Believe In." Senior Choir will also offer a special anthem.

A congregational meeting held following last week's service elected the following men to the church council: Fritz Sieverts, elder; John Hummel and Harry Barthelmas Jr., deacons; R. D. Good and Emerson Martin, trustees; Marion Steinhauer, secretary; and Paul White, treasurer.

Goode, Carle Return From Convention

William Goode and Joseph Carle were representatives from Holy Name Society of Circleville's St. Joseph's church at the Diocesan Holy Name convention held in Columbus last Saturday. Bishop Michael Reedy and Martin H. Work, executive secretary of the National Council of Catholic Men, spoke at the convention.

Sunday will be communion day for the Holy Name Society and the regular meeting of the society will be held at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday in the recreation center.

Junior CYO will meet Wednesday evening in the recreation center and will rehearse their play, "A Christmas Dream."

Senior CYO will meet in the recreation center Thursday to rehearse the play "Christmas in Finnegans Flat." Both plays will be presented to the public Dec. 16.

Catholics in all churches of the Columbus diocese will take the pledge of the "legion of decency" at all masses Sunday, whereby they reaffirm their promise to avoid motion pictures which violate morality and decency.

The Catholic pledge is as follows: "In the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."

"I condemn indecent and immoral motion pictures, and those which glorify crime or criminals. I promise to do all that I can to strengthen public opinion against the production of indecent and immoral films, and to unite with all who protest against them."

"I acknowledge my obligation to form a right conscience about pictures that are dangerous to my moral life. As a member of the Legion of Decency, I pledge myself to remain away from them. I promise, further, to stay away altogether from places of amusement which show them as a matter of policy."

Daily Prayer Is Suggested

A prayer for peace was recently sent out by church and interfaith groups to educational, political and business leaders and was broadcast by a nationally-known radio team.

The response was amazing. Hundreds of thousands are now using this daily prayer:

From the point of Light within the mind of God,
Let light stream forth into the minds of men.

Let light descend on Earth.

From the center where the will of God is known
Let purpose guide the little wills of men—

The purpose which the Master knows and serves.
From the center which we call the race of men

Let the plan of love and light work out.
And may it seal the door where evil dwells.

Let light and love and power restore the plan on Earth.

Nearly 2,500 students from 700 colleges and universities in the U. S. and Canada are expected to attend the sixteenth quadrennial convention of the Student Volunteer Movement. In study, worship and discussion, students and leaders will think together about the Christian message today as it speaks to personal, national and world issues.

The Rev. Edward H. Johnson, general secretary of the SVM, which sponsors the Lawrence conference, said the group will concentrate on answering one main question: "What is the job to which God calls His church in the world of 1951?"

He said the convention "should send out a group of students who have discovered a powerful direction and dynamic for their living because they have glimpsed the purpose and meaning of history in terms of God's plan for mankind working through the church."

In addition to U. S. and Canadian students representing some 40 Protestant denominations, the meeting will include over 200 students from foreign lands and 200 missionaries, student leaders and church executives who will provide the convention's leadership.

Behind the Student Volunteer Movement are 14 student movements affiliated with the United Student Christian Council. Also participating will be the Student Christian Movement of Canada and the National Council of Churches through its divisions of home missions and foreign missions.

Among prominent speakers who will address the student group are: Dr. John S. Baduan, president of American university, Cairo, Egypt; Dr. John A. Mackay, president of Princeton Theological Seminary; Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, professor at Union Theological Seminary, New York City; Dr. Charles W. Ransom of New York City, general secretary of the International Missionary Council; Mr. Eduardo Mondlane of Portuguese East Africa, a literary expert and educator; and Miss Clea Machado, Methodist youth worker of Brazil.

Quaker Minister Flaunts Law, OSU Trustee Claims

CINCINNATI, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Judge Robert N. Gorman, vice chairman of the Ohio State university board of trustees, says that a Quaker minister was barred from speaking on the campus because he advocated that young men disregard the draft.

Judge Gorman's was the first indication by an OSU trustee as to why Dr. Cecil Hinshaw, former president of William Penn college, was banned from speaking on the campus Oct. 18.

The incident drew protests from throughout the country that the university's prohibition of speakers not approved by President Howard L. Bevis was a "gag rule" and a "direct violation of American freedom," Gorman declared.

"I found that Dr. Hinshaw and his society, the Peacemakers, advocated that young men should not register for the draft, and if they had registered, not to pay any attention to their draft cards. Dr. Hinshaw will not and cannot honestly deny that he made such statements on many occasions," He added.

"It is perfectly proper for one to be a sincere conscientious objector. The acts of Congress recognize such sincere believers and those who held them are placed in a special category by the Army."

"However, no one, whether he be a conscientious objector or not, has the right to urge persons to openly flaunt our laws and security measures. Such utterances as Dr. Hinshaw has made have been declared unlawful both by Congress and our courts."

Daily Prayer Is Suggested

A prayer for peace was recently sent out by church and interfaith groups to educational, political and business leaders and was broadcast by a nationally-known radio team.

The response was amazing. Hundreds of thousands are now using this daily prayer:

From the point of Light within the mind of God.

Let light stream forth into the minds of men.

Let light descend on Earth.

From the point of love within the heart of God

Let love stream forth into the hearts of men.

May Christ return to Earth.

Let purpose guide the little wills of men—

The purpose which the Master knows and serves.

From the center which we call the race of men

Let the plan of love and light work out.

And may it seal the door where evil dwells.

Let light and love and power restore the plan on Earth.

Thirty members and five guests attended the meeting which was opened with a devotional service by the Rev. J. D. Hopper and a poem by Mrs. Fannie Brooks with Mrs. Alice Ward at the piano.

Mrs. Brooks presided at the business session when a donation was made to Otterbein Childrens Home and Mrs. Darrell Hatfield was appointed treasurer of the carpet fund.

Hostesses for 1952 meetings were named by Mrs. Ruth Renick, chairman of the calendar committee, and Mrs. Fosnaugh, Mrs. Eloise Fee and Mrs. Wilson were appointed to prepare Christmas gifts for charter members.

Following the business meeting a program of music and recitations was presented by Mrs. Tessie Younkun, Mrs. Ward, and Mrs. Homer Peters.

Gifts from "mystery sisters" were distributed and refreshments served by the hostesses.

Next meeting of the Society will be held, Jan. 10, in the parish house.

Presbyterian Women Fete Husbands

Husbands and friends were guests when Group "E" of Presbyterian Women's Society met in the church Wednesday evening for a covered dish dinner and Christmas party.

Following dinner, Mrs. G. Guy Campbell conducted a business session. Yearly reports were given and plans made to "adopt" a family for Christmas.

Donations of money, clothing, food and toys for the family may be taken to Mrs. Campbell.

Quaker Minister Flaunts Law, OSU Trustee Claims

CINCINNATI, Dec. 8.—Judge Robert N. Gorman, vice chairman of the Ohio State university board of trustees, says that a Quaker minister was barred from speaking on the campus because he advocated that young men disregard the draft.

Judge Gorman's was the first indication by an OSU trustee as to why Dr. Cecil Hinshaw, former president of William Penn college, was banned from speaking on the campus Oct. 18.

The incident drew protests from throughout the country that the university's prohibition of speakers not approved by President Howard L. Bevis was a "gag rule" and a "direct violation of American freedom," Gorman declared.

"I found that Dr. Hinshaw and his society, the Peacemakers, advocated that young men should not register for the draft, and if they had registered, not to pay any attention to their draft cards. Dr. Hinshaw will not and cannot honestly deny that he made such statements on many occasions," he added.

"It is perfectly proper for one to be a sincere conscientious objector. The acts of Congress recognize such sincere believers and those who held them are placed in a special category by the Army."

"However, no one, whether he be a conscientious objector or not, has the right to urge persons to openly flaunt our laws and security measures. Such utterances as Dr. Hinshaw has made have been declared unlawful both by Congress and our courts."

Lutherans Name Architect, Hear Family Report

BUCK HILL FALLS, Pa., Dec. 8.—(AP)—The United Lutheran Church in America has created a department of church architecture and named Charles A. Scheuringer of Philadelphia as the first consulting architect.

Scheuringer was named by the 15-member executive board of the church and will assume his new parttime position Jan. 15.

The new department was organized to "give advice to congregations contemplating building and renovation."

At another session of church executives, C. A. Bongarzone of Philadelphia, advertising manager of The Lutheran, the church magazine, reported on a survey he had made. Bongarzone said he found: A total of 72 per cent of the Lutherans in the United States with an annual income between $4,000 and $4,999 own their own homes and each home has been occupied for at least five years.

Average value of each home is $12,500. Two per cent of the families who own their homes have additional property worth $3,000 to $10,000.

Eighty-five per cent of the families drive a car, and 10 per cent have two cars.

Twenty-four per cent of the Lutherans are college graduates and 56.3 per cent finished high school.

A total of 72.9 per cent lives in urban districts.

Lutherans buy 10 to 19 books a year as individuals, and 49.6 per cent prefer books of a religious nature.

INVESTING IN A NATION

WHERE IS the smart money going these days? What sort of investments offer profit as well as security? Many investors, large and small, have been giving much thought to this problem without finding a satisfactory answer during a period of cheap money and inflation.

One of the nation's greatest life insurance companies has made a decision which is in line with the thinking of many individuals, including private citizens who have turned their attention to a similar activity.

The Prudential Life Insurance Company is putting millions of its assets into real estate. It already has large holdings of this type and is putting $15,000,000 a week into real estate mortgages. In number of loans, 90 per cent are in single family dwellings, and a major percentage of the monetary figure is in such properties.

This company now holds $3,500,000,000 in mortgages throughout the nation, an illustration of the vast resources of life insurance companies today.

Life insurance money has always been smart money of necessity, representing the security of millions of policyholders. In investing its billions in the nation's real estate, the Prudential pays a pretty compliment to the USA, whose future the company is convinced is secure.

QUARRELING BUREAUS

RECENTLY it was pointed out that four different agencies with overlapping authority are issuing conflicting plans and directives as to housing. Now comes a report of a similar snarl in foreign affairs.

Congress appropriated $1,440,000,000 for economic foreign aid, presumably to be administered by a single Mutual Security Agency. Unfortunately, this agency is made up of men from various departments of the government and now each department insists upon throwing its weight around.

Dipping their fingers in are the State, Treasury and Defense departments and the Office of Defense Mobilization.

Two or three years ago a group of experts, known as the Hoover Commission, devoted much time to the study of just such tangles and proposed ways to eliminate them, increasing government efficiency and saving considerable money for the taxpayers.

A few of the recommendations have been put into effect halfheartedly. The remainder are pigeonholed in the fastnesses of Washington while the raging lions of bureaucracy fight over their precious prerogatives.

It is a costly farce, worthy of attack by the best administrator America can find and backed by the wholehearted cooperation of Congress.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

During this month of December, the mailman—one delivery a day—brings bags of appeals for funds for a vast variety of charities. Obviously in these days of high taxes, one unfortunately must give much less than the heart dictates.

Once upon a time, it was said that charity was going to be rationed in such a manner that it would be possible to give only once a year to a big fund that would parcel out all the gifts on an efficient and rational basis.

That scheme has failed. For not only have the big funds multiplied in number and variety but there are still many institutions, and their numbers increase, which make their annual appeals independently of Community Chests and Federations of Welfare Organizations.

My wife and I long ago decided that we would refuse to be pressured by drives. Except in matters of personal emergencies, we give to organized charity only at the end of the month of December. By then, we can know what high taxes and inflation have left us for the pleasure of good works.

We look over our lists of past contributions and we screen all the circulars and fine printing we have received during the year and we divide our charity fund according to our judgment and our conscience. Maybe by this process, we avoid the professional collectors.

It is difficult for me to contribute to the big funds because within them are hidden many institutions, organizations and social workers whom I dislike or even oppose. I refuse to contribute to any organization which has even remote connections with Communists or on whose paid staff is a person with a Communist record.

The appeal for big funds holds that it all averages out. But virtue cannot be averaged; it is absolute. It is governed by the natural law revealed to man by God. At any rate, that is what, in our family, we believe. Therefore we prefer to give directly without the intermediary of the big fund.

Charity is a free-will offering at the altar of God. Maybe the giving of charity is an atonement for gluttony, excesses, fallibilities, shame. Or maybe it is an acknowledgement of our blessings, life, liberty, health, even happiness. Such acts call for no thanks, no applause, no recognition.

And so, we give our mite to such institutions and causes as we love or respect. Recently, I had a sad experience. I made an appeal for funds for a favored charity—a Roman Catholic but non-sectarian institution for men who had slipped off the road of life. Many wrote me asking how I, a Jew, could beg for a Catholic institution. That saddened me. For begging should know no such distinctions. Begging is, of itself, an act of humility, which we all need so much in this life.

DIET AND HEALTH

A Common Type Of Headache

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PEOPLE who have migraine headaches seem to have a typical type of personality. They are usually alert, active individuals. It is thought that perhaps some emotional disturbance may lie behind this common type of headache, at least in certain cases.

In migraine, the pain occurs only on one side of the head in most cases, and it is also interesting that those who are subject to these headaches usually have some sort of warning sign before the attack occurs. For example, they may feel depressed and irritable or restless, have poor appetite, see spots before the eyes, or feel a tingling or numbness of the arms and legs.

Headache Develops

Soon after these signs are noted, the headache develops. It is quite severe and is often accompanied by sickness at the stomach and vomiting. Sometimes there are attacks of pain in the abdomen. The attack may last for a few hours to several days.

Unfortunately, up to the present, no one has found the real cause for migraine. It has been suggested that perhaps it is due to some disturbance of the glands of internal secretion, to defective vision, or to allergy or oversensitivity, among many other things.

In any event, during an attack there is some disturbance of the circulation of the blood vessels in the brain. Just before the attack, these blood vessels become constricted. Then they become dilated or increased in size, which causes the headache.

In treating migraine, many different drugs have been used. The one which up to the present seems to have the greatest effect in relieving the symptoms is called ergotamine.

A combination of this drug with caffeine is also quite useful and seems to give marked relief when taken at the onset of an attack. The preparation is, of course, best taken by mouth under the direction of a physician in the dose which he prescribes.

Patient Should Rest

During an attack, the patient should be at rest in a quiet, darkened room. Cold applications to the head may be helpful.

Those who have migraine should have a complete physical examination made so that any disorders present in the body may be discovered and cleared up. Treatment by a psychiatrist has helped to make the attacks less frequent in certain cases.

The migraine sufferer can be helped in many instances, but he must put himself under the care of a physician and follow the treatment outlined for him.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. W. H.: Is there anything wrong with a person having low blood pressure? I am not anemic.

A. Answer: There are no symptoms due to low blood pressure itself, although a person may be slightly more fatigued and have more difficulty getting started in the morning if he has extremely low blood pressure.

CHAPTER FORTY

"I know you're interested in Mollie," Clara countered to the surgeon's advice that she let Mollie alone. Nicholas' eyes sparkled at this characteristic maneuver on her part. "Some folks misunderstand that interest, but I know you both pretty well. And I'll tell you, incidentally, as I tried to tell Mollie, that it's the beginning of the end for a woman when she takes up with men younger than she is."

"He's not much younger," drawled Nicholas, again fighting down that worry feeling of jealous apprehension, purging his voice of it. He should walk away from this woman, but he'd rather she'd tell her tale to him than to someone else. And perhaps he could warn her...

"Peter Shepherd," said Clara definitely, "is three years and five months younger than Mollie!"

"Do you know the number of days?"

"Yes, it's—"

"Mrs. Wayne, you amaze me!" This pleased her. "Why?"

"Because you choose such odd occasions to stick to facts."

Her smile was forgiving. "I only mentioned age because I thought you could warn Mollie. She wouldn't listen to me. But you've always been so kind to her. I try to explain to folks how you feel about her. You have no children of your own, and I remember how my husband wanted a child to carry on the work he'd done in medicine."

Nicholas hunched his shoulders under the thick shawl of age which she had draped about him. "I'm hardly the man your husband was," he said dryly.

"Well, of course not. I didn't mean that. But you are Mollie's friend, aren't you?"

"I think I could claim that much." In spite of himself, now his head lifted and his eyes sought Mollie's windows. Peter Shepherd would still be up there—

Clara recognized that fact, too. "As her friend, I think you should tell her she shouldn't go on this way!"

Suddenly, Nicholas was shaking with rage. Not trusting himself to speak further, he turned on his heel and walked away from Clara Wayne. He zipped his jacket to his throat, thrust his hands into the pockets, and crossed to Lindell, walking swiftly, angrily, along the sidewalk. He walked clear out to the University, turned there and came back, his face stern, his mind seething. In his thoughts, Mollie became associated with what he knew of Liz Ragsdale—one man after another, swift, not flirtations—Peter became confused with Dr. Ragsdale; then Nicholas himself became Ragsdale, the man betrayed. Ragsdale's father got into it; he had been Nicholas' friend, and had placed a dollar value on that friendship so that Nicholas' ability to have other friends still was crippled.

Nicholas stood off, mentally able to watch this seething pot, able to identify the ingredients as they boiled to the surface—and yet know that he was a part of it. He did not, had not, believed one word of Clara's story, or her insinuations; he wasn't even sure that Peter Shepherd was with Mollie, and if he was—

He groaned aloud. Mollie had not been in love with him. If she were—Mollie, in love, would be warm, impulsive—

He walked faster; his heels hit the cement as hard as he could thrust them down—but he could not outrun the burning of his senses, the ache, the longing—

There was some gossip in the Group about Dr. Brooks and the surgical resident, but not nearly as much, nor of the same sort, as there was lately about Shepherd and a girl named Janie. A dark-haired girl, eighteen or so, and as cute as the dickens. As much of an extrovert as Peter, they'd be exactly right for each other. Did Mollie know about Janie? Would it hurt her to know?

How clever, how calculating, was Peter being? If he was calculating at all, Nicholas would have him by the throat!

And yet, he didn't think he was. Peter was nice to Mollie, charming with her. Unconsciously charming, as he was to everyone.

But with Janie, the one time Nicholas had seen them together, there had been a little difference. For one thing, there was no awe of Janie in Peter's eyes. He'd sat side by side on stools in the cafeteria one day when Nicholas had gone into the place for coffee. Their hands had touched, clung; their smiles were intimate, tender——knowledgeable. But, perhaps alone with Mollie, Peter dropped his awe, his slight air of deference—In any case, he'd know just how to do with any woman, all women—as his father had known before him.

Nicholas sighed. Women liked him, or said they did, but it was because he was Nicholas Cowan, rich and famous. Or it was the adoration which, as a consistently thoughtful and courteous man, he got from his secretary. Mollie had once so "adored" him. Pah! He wanted a woman at his side, in the circle of his arm, a woman whose beauty would glow because she thought of him. He wanted Mollie so. And once he had hoped...

He walked on, considering how his life had recently been invaded by women. Not only Mollie. He'd planned a place for her in his well-insulated existence, had hoped to do so—but lately a perfect swarm of females had descended upon his privacy. Mollie in a hundred different guises. Clara Wayne. That cute little sparrow, Janie. Even Liz Ragsdale. He laughed aloud at the collection.

He was laughing when he ran lightly up his front steps and let himself into the warm hall. Sylvester came toward him, his dark face reproachful.

"I missed dinner, didn't I?" said Nicholas contritely.

"Yes, sir."

"Was Lillie upset?"

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Vivian Gordon

NEW YORK—The magazine lay open on my desk, and when I glanced down at it and saw the picture of the Broadway Butterfly, draped in a shawl and not much else, 20 years fell away swiftly and I heard myself saying "Ah, they don't make murders like that one any more." Newspapers are a pretty callous lot.

The magazine was something called U. S. Crime and the piece was by John Lardner, a professional (and good) writer; the story was called "Who Strangled Vivian Gordon?" and the nostalgia was mine. We have had a great many killings here in New York, from axe slayings in Chinatown to gang murders along the lower East Side to satinsilk poisonings on the upper East Side. Few have had as many of the choice ingredients as Vivian Gordon's.

Mr. Lardner points out something that I wasn't aware of; that Harry Stein, the man accused and then acquitted of Vivian's murder, is in Sing Sing today awaiting death in the chair for killing a messenger in the holdup of a Reader's Digest truck a year and a half ago. Many students of crime, Lardner points out, think that Stein has lived 20 years on borrowed time.

had done a stretch in the Bedford reformatory. She was a shakedown artist—a passionate, cruel woman who would do almost anything to make a dollar and usually did.

THEY FOUND HER ONE GRAY WINTER MORNING up in Van Cortlandt park in the Bronx, a beat-up old health where I have golfed, skated, ridden horseback and loafed. A clothesline was drawn tightly around her neck and her head was bashed in.

The newspapers seized on the story delightedly and worried it to death, the sob sisters had their field day with the corny but true story of the Broadway Butterfly who had been caught in the sordid web of violence. Mostly it was Vivian's seven diaries that filled the news columns. It seemed to the police sometimes that Vivian must have known intimately every man in New York. One of the men in the diaries was Harry Stein, born Norestein in New York, a belligerently good-looking man who already had done time for robbing and half-strangling a woman.

New York justice works strangely. Lardner says a detective who worked on the case recently said "it was, I think, the strongest we ever sent in." The driver of the death car, a man named Harry Schlitten, virtually described the whole affair and how Stein and a man named Greenberg had strangled Vivian in the back seat.

The motive never was clearly established, but Vivian had been working for years to establish that, when she had been sent up for prostitution she had been framed. Just before she was murdered, she had informed the Seabury committee investigating corruption in New York that she had such proof. She never got a chance to talk.

STEIN, BACK TO THE WALL, had the ace of spades in the hole —Sam Leibowitz, the leopard who has changed his spots. Now he is Judge Sam Leibowitz, defender of democracy and faith; then he was the man who defended all manner of criminals and rarely lost a case. Leibowitz got Schlitten to admit a criminal record and hinted broadly that police had pressured him into his testimony. Stein went free.

They put Stein in jail almost immediately, however, for an attack and robbery that had taken place earlier, and he just got out a couple of years before the truck murder in 1950. "Most of the 20 years since Vivian Gordon died, full of bourbon," Stein has been in prison," Lardner writes. "The 20th put him in the death house."

INVESTING IN A NATION

WHERE IS the smart money going these days? What sort of investments offer profit as well as security? Many investors, large and small, have been giving much thought to this problem without finding a satisfactory answer during a period of cheap money and inflation.

One of the nation's greatest life insurance companies has made a decision which is in line with the thinking of many individuals, including private citizens who have turned their attention to a similar activity.

The Prudential Life Insurance Company is putting millions of its assets into real estate. It already has large holdings of this type and is putting $15,000,000 a week into real estate mortgages. In number of loans, 90 per cent are in single family dwellings, and a major percentage of the monetary figure is in such properties.

This company now holds $3,500,000,000 in mortgages throughout the nation, an illustration of the vast resources of life insurance companies today.

Life insurance money has always been smart money of necessity, representing the security of millions of policyholders. In investing its billions in the nation's real estate, the Prudential pays a pretty compliment to the USA, whose future the company is convinced is secure.

QUARRELING BUREAUS

RECENTLY it was pointed out that four different agencies with overlapping authority are issuing conflicting plans and directives as to housing. Now comes a report of a similar snarl in foreign affairs.

Congress appropriated $1,440,000,000 for economic foreign aid, presumably to be administered by a single Mutual Security Agency. Unfortunately, this agency is made up of men from various departments of the government and now each department insists upon throwing its weight around.

Dipping their fingers in are the State, Treasury and Defense departments and the Office of Defense Mobilization.

Two or three years ago a group of experts, known as the Hoover Commission, devoted much time to the study of just such tangles and proposed ways to eliminate them, increasing government efficiency and saving considerable money for the taxpayers.

A few of the recommendations have been put into effect halfheartedly. The remainder are pigeonholed in the fastnesses of Washington while the raging lions of bureaucracy fight over their precious prerogatives.

It is a costly farce, worthy of attack by the best administrator America can find and backed by the wholehearted cooperation of Congress.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

During this month of December, the mailman—one delivery a day—brings bags of appeals for funds for a vast variety of charities. Obviously in these days of high taxes, one unfortunately must give much less than the heart dictates.

Once upon a time, it was said that charity was going to be rationed in such a manner that it would be possible to give only once a year to a big fund that would parcel out all the gifts on an efficient and rational basis.

That scheme has failed. For not only have the big funds multiplied in number and variety but there are still many institutions, and their numbers increase, which make their annual appeals independently of Community Chests and Federations of Welfare Organizations.

My wife and I long ago decided that we would refuse to be pressured by drives. Except in matters of personal emergencies, we give to organized charity only at the end of the month of December. By then, we can know what high taxes and inflation have left us for the pleasure of good works.

We look over our lists of past contributions and we screen all the circulars and fine printing we have received during the year and we divide our charity fund according to our judgment and our conscience. Maybe by this process, we avoid the professional collectors.

It is difficult for me to contribute to the big funds because within them are hidden many institutions, organizations and social workers whom I dislike or even oppose. I refuse to contribute to any organization which has even remote connections with Communists or on whose paid staff is a person with a Communist record.

The appeal for big funds holds that it all averages out. But virtue cannot be averaged; it is absolute. It is governed by the natural law revealed to man by God. At any rate, that is what, in our family, we believe. Therefore we prefer to give directly without the intermediary of the big fund.

Charity is a free-will offering at the altar of God. Maybe the giving of charity is an atonement for gluttony, excesses, fallibilities, shame. Or maybe it is an acknowledgment of our blessings, life, liberty, health, even happiness. Such acts call for no thanks, no applause, no recognition.

And so, we give our mite to such institutions and causes as we love or respect. Recently, I had a sad experience. I made an appeal for funds for a favored charity—a Roman Catholic but non-sectarian institution for men who had slipped off the road of life. Many wrote me asking how I, a Jew, could beg for a Catholic institution. That saddened me. For begging should know no such distinctions. Begging is, of itself, an act of humility, which we all need so much in this life.

A Common Type Of Headache

By HERMAN N. BUNDENSEN, M.D.

PEOPLE who have migraine headaches seem to have a typical type of personality. They are usually alert, active individuals. It is thought that perhaps some emotional disturbance may lie behind this common type of headache, at least in certain cases. In migraine, the pain occurs only on one side of the head in most cases, and it is also interesting that those who are subject to these headaches usually have some sort of warning sign before the attack occurs. For example, they may feel depressed and irritable or restless, have poor appetite, see spots before the eyes, or feel a tingling or numbness of the arms and legs.

Headache Develops

Soon after these signs are noted, the headache develops. It is quite severe and is often accompanied by sickness at the stomach and vomiting. Sometimes there are attacks of pain in the abdomen. The attack may last for a few hours to several days.

Unfortunately, up to the present, no one has found the real cause for migraine. It has been suggested that perhaps it is due to some disturbance of the glands of internal secretion, to defective vision, or to allergy or oversensitivity, among many other things.

In any event, during an attack there is some disturbance of the circulation of the blood vessels in the brain. Just before the attack, these blood vessels become constricted. Then they become dilated or increased in size, which causes the headache.

In treating migraine, many different drugs have been used. The one which up to the present seems to have the greatest effect in relieving the symptoms is called ergotamine. A combination of this drug with caffeine is also quite useful and seems to give marked relief when taken at the onset of an attack. The preparation is, of course, best taken by mouth under the direction of a physician in the dose which he prescribes.

Patient Should Rest

During an attack, the patient should be at rest in a quiet, darkened room. Cold applications to the head may be helpful.

Those who have migraine should have a complete physical examination made so that any disorders present in the body may be discovered and cleared up. Treatment by a psychiatrist has helped to make the attacks less frequent in certain cases.

The migraine sufferer can be helped in many instances, but he must put himself under the care of a physician and follow the treatment outlined for him.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H. W.: Is there anything wrong with a person having low blood pressure? I am not anemic.

Answer: There are no symptoms due to low blood pressure itself, although a person may be slightly more fatigued and have more difficulty getting started in the morning if he has extremely low blood pressure.

CHAPTER FORTY

"I know you're interested in Mollie," Clara countered to the surgeon's advice that she let Mollie alone. Nicholas' eyes sparkled at this characteristic maneuver on her part. "Some folks misunderstand that interest, but I know you both pretty well. And I'll tell you, incidentally, as I tried to tell Mollie, that it's the beginning of the end for a woman when she takes up with men younger than she is."

"He's not much younger," drawled Nicholas, again fighting down that wormy feeling of jealous apprehension, purging his voice of it. He should walk away from this woman, but he'd rather she'd tell her tale to him than to someone else. And perhaps he could warn her...

"Peter Shepherd," said Clara definitely, "is three years and five months younger than Mollie!"

"Do you know the number of days?"

"Yes, it's—"

"Mrs. Wayne, you amaze me!" This pleased her. "Why?"

"Because you choose such odd occasions to stick to facts."

Her smile was forgiving. "I only mentioned age because I thought you could warn Mollie. She wouldn't listen to me. But you've always been so kind to her. I try to explain to folks how you feel about her. You have no children of your own, and I remember how my husband wanted a child to carry on the work he'd done in medicine."

Nicholas hunched his shoulders under the thick shawl of age which she had draped about him. "I'm hardly the man your husband was," he said dryly.

"Well, of course not. I didn't mean that. But you are Mollie's friend, aren't you?"

"I think I could claim that much." In spite of himself, now his head lifted and his eyes sought Mollie's windows. Peter Shepherd would still be up there—

Clara recognized that fact, too. "As her friend, I think you should tell her she shouldn't go on this way!"

Suddenly, Nicholas was shaking with rage. Not trusting himself to speak further, he turned on his heel and walked away from Clara Wayne. He zipped his jacket to his throat, thrust his hands into the pockets, and crossed to Lindell, walking swiftly, angrily, along the sidewalk. He walked clear out to the University, turned there and came back, his face stern, his mind seething. In his thoughts, Mollie became associated with what he knew of Liz Ragsdale—one man after another, swift, not, flirtations—Peter became confused with Dr. Ragsdale; then Nicholas himself became Ragsdale, the man betrayed. Peter's father got into it; he had been Nicholas' friend, and had placed a dollar value on that friendship so that Nicholas' ability to have other friends still was crippled.

Nicholas stood off, mentally able to watch this seething pot, able to identify the ingredients as they boiled to the surface—and yet, know that he was a part of it.

He did not, had not, believed one word of Clara's story, or her insinuations; he wasn't even sure that Peter Shepherd was with Mollie, and if he was—

He groaned aloud. Mollie had not been in love with him. If she were—Mollie, in love, would be warm, impulsive—

He walked faster; his heels hit the cement as hard as he could thrust them down—but he could not outrun the burning of his senses, the ache, the longing—

There was some gossip in the Group about Dr. Brooks and the surgical resident, but not nearly as much, nor of the same sort, as there was lately about Shepherd and a girl named Janie. A dark-haired girl, eighteen or so, and as cute as the dickens. As much of an extrovert as Peter, they'd be exactly right for each other. Did Mollie know about Janie? Would it hurt her to know?

How clever, how calculating, was Peter being? If he was calculating at all, Nicholas would have him by the throat!

And yet, he didn't think he was. Peter was nice to Mollie, charming with her. Inconsciously charming, as he was to everyone.

But with Janie, the one time Nicholas had seen them together, there had been a little difference. For one thing, there was no awe of Janie in Peter's eyes. They'd sat side by side on stools in the canteen one day when Nicholas had gone into the place for coffee. Their hands had touched, clung; their smiles were intimate, tender—knowledgeable. But, perhaps alone with Mollie, Peter dropped his awe, his slight air of deference. In any case, he'd know just how to do with her. He'd know how to do with any woman, all women—as his father had known before him.

Nicholas sighed. Women liked him, or said they did, but it was because he was Nicholas Cowan, rich and famous. Or it was the adoration which, as a consistently thoughtful and courteous man, he got from his secretary. Mollie had once so "adored" him. Pah! He wanted a woman at his side, in the circle of his arm, a woman whose beauty would glow because she thought of him. He wanted Mollie so. And once he had hoped...

He walked on, considering how his life had recently been invaded by women. Not only Mollie. He'd planned a place for her in his well-insulated existence, had hoped to do so—but lately a perfect swarm of females had descended upon his privacy. Mollie in a hundred different guises. Clara Wayne. That cute little sparrow, Janie. Even Liz Ragsdale. He laughed aloud at the collection.

He was laughing when he ran lightly up high front steps and let himself into the warm hall. Sylvester came toward him, his dark face reproachful.

"I missed dinner, didn't I?" said Nicholas contritely.

"Yes, sir."

"Was Lillie upset?"

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Vivian Gordon

NEW YORK—The magazine lay open on my desk, and when I glanced down at it and saw the picture of the Broadway Butterfly, draped in a shawl and not much else, 20 years fell away swiftly and I heard myself saying "Ah, they don't make murders like that one any more." Newspapers are a pretty callous lot.

The magazine was something called U. S. Crime and the piece was by John Lardner, a professional (and good) writer; the story was called "Who Strangled Vivian Gordon?" and the nostalgia was mine. We have had a great many killings here in New York, from axe slayings in Chinatown to gang murders along the lower East Side to satins-and-silk poisonings on the upper East Side. Few have had as many of the choice ingredients as Vivian Gordon's.

Mr. Lardner points out something that I wasn't aware of; that Harry Stein, the man accused and then acquitted of Vivian's murder, is in Sing Sing today awaiting death in the chair for killing a messenger in the holdup of a Reader's Digest truck a year and a half ago. Many students of crime, Lardner points out, think that Stein has lived 20 years on borrowed time.

had done a stretch in the Bedford reformatory. She was a shakedown artist—a passionate, cruel woman who would do almost anything to make a dollar and usually did.

THEY FOUND HER ONE GRAY WINTER MORNING up in Van Cortlandt park in the Bronx, a beat-up old death where I have golfed, skated, ridden horseback and loafed. A clothesline was drawn tightly around her neck and her head was bashed in.

The newspapers seized on the story delightedly and worried it to death, the sob sisters had their field day with the corny but true story of the Broadway Butterfly who had been caught in the sordid web of violence. Mostly it was Vivian's seven diaries that filled the news columns. It seemed to the police sometimes that Vivian must have known intimately every man in New York. One of the men in the diaries was Harry Stein, born Norestein in New York, a belligerently good-looking man who already had done time for robbing and half-strangling a woman.

New York justice works strangely. Lardner says a detective who worked on the case recently said "it was, I think, the strongest we ever sent in." The driver of the death car, a man named Harry Schlitten, virtually described the whole affair and how Stein and a man named Greenberg had strangled Vivian in the back seat.

The motive never was clearly established, but Vivian had been working for years to establish that, when she had been sent up for prostitution she had been framed. Just before she was murdered, she had informed the Seabury committee investigating corruption in New York that she had such proof. She never got a chance to talk.

STEIN, BACK TO THE WALL, had the ace of spades in the hole—Sam Leibowitz, the leopard who has changed his spots. Now he is Judge Sam Leibowitz, defender of democracy and faith; then he was the man who defended all manner of criminals and rarely lost a case. Leibowitz got Schlitten to admit a criminal record and hinted broadly that police had pressured him into his testimony. Stein went free.

They put Stein in jail almost immediately, however, for an attack and robbery that had taken place earlier, and he just got out a couple of years before the truck murder in 1950. "Most of the 20 years since Vivian Gordon died, full of bourbon" * * * Stein has been in prison, Lardner writes. "The 20th put him in the death house."

Visit To South America Is Described By Exchange Student At Club Meeting

Tells Of Huge Coffee Profits

Brazil is a country where human labor is cheaper and more efficient than high-powered machinery, according to Donald Herr of Hebron, in a talk before Junior Woman's Club and their husbands at a dinner meeting held in Pickaway Arms Thursday evening.

Concerning the climate of the South American nation he said, "The average temperature is 70 degrees and there is no Summer. Winter, but a wet and dry season."

Young Herr, a recent graduate of Ohio State university, returned recently from a four-month stay in Brazil as part of the International Farm Youth Exchange.

He illustrated the account of his visit by the use of colored slides made on the trip, showing pictures of Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo, telling his listeners that there was very little difference between these cities and American cities of comparable size.

Mr. Herr described a visit to a large dairy farm of several thousand acres where the owner lives only a few months of the year and employs six or seven hundred laborers at wages of 50 cents to $1 a day.

"Very little modern machinery is used," he said, "primarily because labor is so cheap, and because the laborers have not learned to use or repair the machinery. Because of the nature of the agriculture, raising coffee, sugar cane, rice, and cattle, much of the operation must be hand work."

In a land where there could be vegetables from a kitchen garden all year long," the speaker said, "the natives have not learned to eat vegetables. Theirs is a meat and rice or potato diet. Schools now have vegetable gardens and are making a special effort to teach children to eat vegetables. The free public school cover five years and many children in remote sections have no schooling at all," he added.

Herr repeated the story often told at people of other countries get their impressions of America and Americans from our movies. He deplored the fact that our movies, going to other countries, aren't better, in order that the impressions gained from them might be better.

He said, "Natives in some areas expected me to carry guns and wear a ten gallon hat. They think our whole country is a semi-arid land such as that used as the locale for most western movies."

The speaker told of one area which he visited where virgin timber has been cut and coffee planted. He said farmers who purchased land ten years ago are reaping five times their investment each year. He hastily added that the land was much higher now, but that a Cadillac was a farm wagon to these farmers.

Young Herr told his listeners that because of the success of the Farm Youth Exchange Program 200 American students will go abroad next year. There were 57 went in 1951.

For the dinner which preceded Herr's address, club members and their guests were seated at a long table centered with a miniature Christmas tree flanked by red candles and Christmas greens. Each place was marked by a miniature Christmas stocking of red felt. The program was arranged by Mrs. George Macklin.

Mrs. Milton Patterson will be hostess for the club's January meeting.

Visit To South America
Is Described By Exchange
Student At Club Meeting

Tells Of Huge
Coffee Profits

Brazil is a country where human labor is cheaper and more efficient than high-powered machinery, according to Donald Herr of Hebron, in a talk before Junior Woman's Club and their husbands at a dinner meeting held in Pickaway Arms Thursday evening.

Concerning the climate of the South American nation he said, "The average temperature is 70 degrees and there is no Summer in Winter, but a wet and dry season."

Young Herr, a recent graduate of Ohio State university, returned recently from a four-month stay in Brazil as part of the International Farm Youth Exchange.

He illustrated the account of his visit by the use of colored slides made on the trip, showing pictures of Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo, telling his listeners that there was very little difference between these cities and American cities of comparable size.

Mr. Herr described a visit to a large dairy farm of several thousand acres where the owner lives only a few months of the year and employs six or seven hundred laborers at wages of 30 cents to $1 a day.

"Very little modern machinery is used," he said, "primarily because labor is so cheap, and because the laborers have not learned to use or repair the machinery. Because of the nature of the agriculture, raising coffee, sugar cane, rice, and cattle, much of the operation must be hand work."

In a land where there could be vegetables from a kitchen garden all year long," the speaker said, "the natives have not learned to eat vegetables. Theirs is a meat and rice or potato diet. Schools now have vegetable gardens and are making a special effort to teach children to eat vegetables. The free public school cover five years and many children in remote sections have no schooling at all," he added.

Herr repeated the story often told by people of other countries get their impressions of America and Americans from our movies. He deplored the fact that our movies, going to other countries, aren't better, in order that the impressions gained from them might be better.

He said, "Natives in some areas expected me to carry guns and wear a ten gallon hat. They think our whole country is a semi-arid land such as that used as the locale for most western movies."

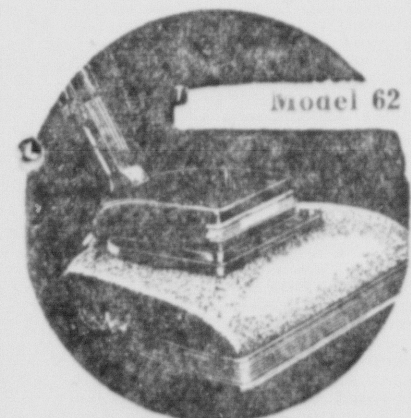

The speaker told of one area which he visited where virgin timber has been cut and coffee planted. He said farmers who purchased land ten years ago are reaping five times their investment each year. He hastily added that the land was much higher now, but that a Cadillac was a farm wagon to these farmers.

Young Herr told his listeners that because of the success of the Farm Youth Exchange Program 200 American students will go abroad next year. There were 57 went in 1951.

For the dinner which preceded Herr's address, club members and their guests were seated at a long table centered with a miniature Christmas tree flanked by red candles and Christmas greens. Each place was marked by a miniature Christmas stocking of red felt. The program was arranged by Mrs. George Macklin.

Mrs. Milton Patterson will be hostess for the club's January meeting.

Plans To Fight
John Barleycorn

Mrs. Ilo Creamer presented Mrs. Luma Elliott of Columbus who discussed plans for making WCTU work more effective by "working through the youth of the community; through teachers in Sunday and day schools." She said, "We need capable Christian leadership."

Mrs. Elliott also said that "Lack of leadership is due to popular 'wet' sentiment; radio advertising and television programs which show drinking and smoking."

"John Barleycorn's foot is in the door of the American home, today. Both adults and youth hesitate to speak against alcoholic beverages because they are told it is a source of revenue," she declared and added, "but our older people are not afraid to speak out against the curse of liquor."

In Memoriam

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of the late Loring E. Hulse who passed away one year ago Dec. 7th.

Through the valley of the shadow Down the road we all must tread Loring has gone on before us And he waits for us ahead— We have met his parting bravely Knowing on some distant day We will be again united With our loved one who is away. Deeply missed by daughter and widow.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—Eddie Stanky was expected to become the new St. Louis Cardinal manager following a "yes, or no," huddle Saturday between Cardinal President Fred Saigh and officials of the New York Giants.

In exchange for the aggressive second baseman, the Giants were to get pitcher Max Lanier and center fielder Chuck Diering, the players they have been demanding since last Nov. 20—shortly before Marty Marion was released as pilot of the Cardinals.

Raider Cagers Edged 49-45 By Monroe Indians

Atlanta's Red Raider cagers gave Monroe Township fans a real scare Friday night when they all but upset the powerful Indian quintet.

After the smoke of battle had cleared away from the Monroe court the Indians posted a meagre 49-45 victory while the Red Raiders collected the moral victory.

From the start of the contest the fans were kept on the edges of their seats as Monroe was able to post only an 11-10 lead in the first quarter and Atlanta surged back in the second stanza to claim a 23-20 advantage.

Both teams staged powerful offensives in the third period, with Monroe leading by a scant 37-36 edge going into the final frame. The Indians collected a dozen points in the last period for the win while holding the challengers to only nine markers.

MONROE'S VICTORY was paced by Jim Brigner, who cluttered up the scorer's book with 21 points, while Harley Evans paced the Raider combine with 19.

Monroe will travel to Pickaway Friday night for its next game, while Atlanta has a game due Tuesday at Good Hope.

Sokolsky's These Days

My son recounted a tale at lunch which brought the worth of humility close to me. He had taken his lunch to school, only to discover that he again had been given peanut butter sandwiches of which he had tired. Opening his package, he threw the sandwiches into the waste-paper basket.

His Latin teacher, apparently a man of character, upbraided the boy, told him of the hungry who would regard such sandwiches as manna from Heaven. He asked the boy to reclaim those sandwiches and to eat them.

The boy refused. He said that the sandwiches were dirty, having been in the waste-paper basket.

Then the teacher took the "dirty" sandwiches from the waste-paper basket and ate them.

Such acts of humility remain with a child for life. They represent education by example. They open the child's mind to the virtues of charity and humility. No man is too great to beg for good causes or too poor to give to them.

Each man and woman must give as he can and thinks right. Our method is for our family; it is neither the wisest nor the most acceptable pattern. So, others will find patterns of giving which are more suitable to their ideas and their way of living.

But each one should give, even the smallest child. There is no substitute for charity. The other day in Washington, I saw people with badges representing some kind of public welfare. I could not help feeling how weak that phrase is compared with that noble, age-old word, charity—which is derived from love.

It cost the United States $2 billion annually to develop the atomic bomb.

Stanky Slated To Pilot Cards

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Eddie Stanky was expected to become the new St. Louis Cardinal manager following a "yes, or no," huddle Saturday between Cardinal President Fred Saigh and officials of the New York Giants.

In exchange for the aggressive second baseman, the Giants were to get Pitcher Max Lanier and Center Fielder Chuck Diering, the players they have been demanding since last Nov. 20—shortly before Marty Marion was released as pilot of the Cardinals.

Cincy, Toledo In Cage Finals

TOLEDO, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The University of Toledo and the University of Cincinnati will meet Saturday night in the finals of the Mid-America basketball tournament here.

Cincinnati whipped Western Michigan 83 to 77 Friday night in a wild fray that drew 59 personal fouls. Toledo led all the way in a 59-47 victory over Miami. The two losers will play a preliminary consolation game.

Raider Cagers Edged 49-45 By Monroe Indians

Atlanta's Red Raider cagers gave Monroe Township fans a real scare Friday night when they all but upset the powerful Indian quintet.

After the smoke of battle had cleared away from the Monroe court the Indians posted a meager 49-45 victory while the Red Raiders collected the moral victory.

From the start of the contest the fans were kept on the edges of their seats as Monroe was able to post only an 11-10 lead in the first quarter and Atlanta surged back in the second stanza to claim a 23-20 advantage.

Both teams staged powerful offensives in the third period, with Monroe leading by a scant 37-36 edge going into the final frame. The Indians collected a dozen points in the last period for the win while holding the challengers to only nine markers.

MONROE'S VICTORY was paced by Jim Brigner, who cluttered up the scorer's book with 21 points, while Harley Evans paced the Raider combine with 19.

Monroe will travel to Pickaway Friday night for its next game, while Atlanta has a game due Tuesday at Good Hope.

OLIPHANT NEEDS MORE TIME

Ex-Revenue Legal Chief Shuns Congress Probe

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 — Charles Oliphant, after demanding an immediate public hearing by House tax investigators, failed to appear Friday at a committee session called to hear him. He sent word he wished to delay his appearance "several days."

Oliphant, 42, resigned two days ago as chief legal officer of the scandal-hit Bureau of Internal Revenue.

He said then he felt unable to endure any longer the "vilification" to which he had been subject at hearings by a House ways and means subcommittee. The group is looking into charges of irregularities in the tax collecting service. Oliphant blasted particularly at the "scurrilous charges" linking his name to an alleged "clique" of Washington officials which a witness had sworn he was told was on the look out for "soft touches."

THE STORY came from Abraham Teitelbaum, Chicago attorney, who said two men tried to shake him down for $500,000 on the representation that they would save him from "tax troubles" through their connection with the alleged "clique." He named the two men as Frank Bathen, Pittsburg promoter and man-about-town, and Bert K. Naster, Hollywood, Fla., businessman.

Teitelbaum's story was followed quickly by angry denials from officials. Nathan took the committee's witness chair and swore, under oath, that it was a "dirty lie."

Attorney General McGrath Thursday ordered that the whole matter be placed before a federal grand jury.

Oliphant "demanded" the right to reply from the committee's witness chair.

Fulltime Turnpike Panel Urged By Milligan

NEWARK, Dec. 8 — Fred J. Milligan, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, believes Ohio should have a fulltime turnpike commission.

In a speech at a dinner of the Licking County Republican organization Thursday night, Milligan called the present parttime turnpike commission "an administrative monstrosity" abolished in Pennsylvania 10 years ago.

He said it is just as important to amend the turnpike law to put the commission on a fulltime basis as it is to amend the law "to protect New York's investment bankers."

Gov. Frank J. Lausche has called a special session of the legislature for Monday to amend the turnpike law to meet objections raised by bankers.

Investment bankers refused to buy Ohio turnpike bonds until the law is amended to permit the commission to take immediate possession of land for right-of-way. Present Ohio law requires the commission to wait until the price of land condemned for right-of-way is settled in court.

One Of Five Red Attacks Good

SEOUL, Dec. 8 — Communist troops, attacking through a chill early morning rain, knocked Allied infantrymen out of one central front outpost Friday.

The Reds launched five small probing attacks shortly after midnight southwest of Kumsong on Kumsong on the center of the 145-mile Korean front. United Nations outposts beat back four of these attacks. The fifth Allied unit withdrew from its advance position in the face of the attack. Otherwise, the U. S. Eighth Army said, the fronts were quiet.

Low-hanging rain and snow clouds which darkened Mt. Alley, scene of daily U. S. jet victories, curbed aerial combat.

ness chair to the bringing of his name into the hearings.

In a letter to King, Oliphant said he had "no disposition" to accept a subcommittee invitation to a closed hearing. He added:

"The time for closed sessions has passed. What I am entitled to is that your committee afford me ample opportunity to repair the damage done my reputation before your committee."

Big Mine Firm Raps Railroad Rate Hike Bid

COLUMBUS, Dec. 8 — A large coal mining firm has joined big electric utilities in opposing a rate increase to railroads for hauling coal in Ohio.

Frank Whitaker, vice president of the North American Coal Corp., told the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio that even present rates are hurting his business.

Railroads want increased rates to meet rising operating costs. Big electric utilities are opposed because it would cost them large sums, as big users of coal.

Whitaker, whose company owns the Powhatan Mining Co. in southeastern Ohio and two West Virginia mining firms, said present rates already restrict the shipment of Ohio coal.

Whitaker said trucks are hauling 13 per cent of the coal mined in Belmont, Harrison and Jefferson Counties, and that those counties produce 52 per cent of all the coal mined in Ohio. He added:

"Apparently the railroads are attempting to retrieve the revenue lost to trucks and by other losing railroad services, such as passenger, mail, express and freight commodities other than coal."

Taft Appeals For Youths To Back Republicans

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 8 — Sen. Robert A. Taft, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, has appealed to the younger generation in a call for a GOP election victory next year.

Taft made the appeal in a speech before the John Marshall Club, an organization of Republican attorneys.

It was one of three formal addresses he planned to deliver in St. Louis Friday.

A whole generation comprising 45 million voters have never known a Republican President in their adult lives, Taft said, and "they have come to accept as a normal part of American government, war and alarms of war."

He renewed his attack on the administration's foreign and domestic policies and said of the young voters:

"They have lived through a succession of emergencies and look for continuous emergencies in the future. They accept, while they resent, bureaucratic efforts to control their business, their farms and their daily lives."
